This program is designed to allow our injured servicemembers to return to their homes. It allows them to resume a more normal life and being in a familiar environment, potentially helps treatment for those with severe injuries. However, I am deeply concerned that this program is underfunded. The graphic next to me is a fundraising flyer for Marine Sergeant Eddie Ryan. Sergeant Ryans story is very well-known in the Hudson Valley. He was shot twice in the head in Ramadi. Doctors thought he had little chance to survive. He battled, however, and after months of therapy was well enough to begin to think about returning home. Home was not ready for him though. The hallway to his bedroom was too small for his wheelchair and the living room could not fit him and his family at the same time. Renovations to the house were estimated at 100, 000. Since the house was owned by Sergeant Ryans parents, he was only eligible for 10, 000. Out of desperation, the family tried to get ABCs Extreme Makeover to modify their house. A family whose son nearly died for his country had to beg a television show to help them. Nothing came of this and the family had to continue to look for options. Eddies parents ultimately transferred the house to their child so they could receive 50, 000. To make up the difference, they relied on donated labor from local contractors and fundraisers like the one you see advertised on the display board to pay for the...
